Unsight Chance Sep 24 2022 Fashioned after Mary Higgins Clarke's with an urban contemporary spin, J.B. Stallworth's pocketbook thriller serial 'Fear Me Not' is back dropped against the colorful and often corrupt world of the powerful and elite in historic Baltimore, Maryland. The series begins with part one... Unsight Chance. Returning home is never easy. Especially if every sordid, embarrassing detail of your Hollywood coupling gone-bad is headlined on all the celebrity magazines, entertainment TV shows and gossip blogs. That's what Nicole Harkem faces as she sheepishly returns home to Baltimore after ending her eight-year marriage to famed rap star Gynesis. Nicole soon realizes that going back means confronting her past and mending unkempt relationships with family, old friends and enemies alike; making starting over a challenge. Jasper Jul 30 2020 “Felicity Heaton and Gena Showalter fans will DEVOUR this STANDALONE Paranormal Romance!” Why is it so hard to find a good man? “Single female seeks rare, coveted treasure.” That was the announcement Tatiana wanted to splatter across every online dating site. A strong, loving, committed male partner was what she sought. What she found, instead, were several frogs and too many toads. Where was her elusive prince? Did he exist, or did she miss her opportunity? Why did he have to fall for her? Jasper isn’t seeking a mate. His only intention is to rescue Tatiana from a near-fatal car accident and then move on to his next assignment.... but we all know intent and reality don’t always coincide. Saving Tatiana altered his world and, now, he can’t tear himself away. But making introductions and claiming her heart was not going to be easy. He harbors a secret he’s forbidden to disclose. And there’s that tricky little thing called free will. As much as Jasper craves Tatiana, he can’t make her love him back. In the end, being with him is her decision. A decision that will most definitely be swayed by the secrets he keeps.

This Is My Brain in Love Dec 27 2022 Told in dual narrative, This Is My Brain in Love is a stunning YA contemporary romance, exploring mental health, race, and, ultimately self-acceptance, for fans of I Am Not Your Perfect Mexican Daughter and Emergency Contact. Jocelyn Wu has just three wishes for her junior year: To make it through without dying of boredom, to direct a short film with her BFF Priya Venkatram, and to get at least two months into the year without being compared to or confused with Peggy Chang, the only other Chinese girl in her grade. Will Domenici has two goals: to find a paying summer internship, and to prove he has what it takes to become an editor on his school paper. Then Jocelyn's father tells her their family restaurant may be going under, and all wishes are off. Because her dad has the marketing skills of a dumpling, it's up to Jocelyn and her unlikely new employee, Will, to bring A-Plus Chinese Garden into the 21st century (or, at least, to Facebook). What starts off as a rocky partnership soon grows into something more. But family prejudices and the uncertain future of A-Plus threaten to keep Will and Jocelyn apart. Famous Michael Feb 23 2020 Famous Michael is about a Vietnam vet medic who can't forget the war and the woman who can't forget him. This book contains the long poem, Famous Michael, originally published by the poetry journal, Abraxas, in 1978, and republished as a chapbook by Samidat Press in 1988; as well as an adaptation, revision and expansion of it into a play. Famous Michael was staged by Solano Repertory Company in Fairfield, California, in 2008. Famous Michael won an Arty Award for Best Original Play. Shannon Kase directed. The actors, Wallace Ingalls as Michael and Kirsten Lunde as Linda, won Artys for best male actor and best female actor. The poem is, at its heart, a dramatic monologue, a genre that inhabits the territory between poetry and theatre. The speaker, Michael, is a Vietnam War vet medic. Until he left Vietnam, Michael was famous for not getting hurt, but that was never quite true. The poem follows his progress from graduation, through the war, and to his discharge due to injury. At the end, he begins training his son for the next war as his father trained him. The play is an experiment, asking the question, what happens when this poem crosses the border into theatre? What happens when actors' performances give flesh and blood to the poem's voice, and multi-media underpins (video, stills, and music) with sounds and images? The play version starts Michael's story at the moment of President George Bush's 2003 TV announcement that Coalition Forces have begun invading Iraq. This triggers a vivid and brutal PTSD flashback. Michael stands up in his living room and takes off his bathrobe, revealing jungle battle fatigues. Suddenly it's 1969 and he's back in the Vietnam War. The play adds a second character, Linda--the woman who can't forget him--, because, for the author, without her, the play is too heartbreaking, too far down the abyss of terror and despair. Michael's Vietnam horror alternates with Linda's stateside psychedelic discoveries, as she tries to talk to him, fix him, love him. At the end of the play, back in the present, a broken-down Michael recalls how his father, a WWII vet, trained Michael for the next war—which turned out to be Vietnam—and how Michael trained his son for the next war—which turned out to be Iraq. And Linda calls one last time.
