What Really Happened? Dec 02 2020 Ancient Man Psychological Aspect Theory Legends are not old lies, but ignored truths. Meanwhile the Psychological profile of a person is defined as the set of parameters that may led an individual to behave in a certain way in regards to what that person afterwards may do or may say. in other hand the Psychological Aspect of a human being are other arrange of parameters that make the individuals to believe or interpret the reality in a certain way. The psychological aspect of the prehistoric human being is not the same as the psychological aspect of a modern man. Each human, modern or primitive, can observe the same phenomenon, but the one who possess greater knowledge may interpret it better and explain it accurately. The right person to explain an unknown phenomena is the one who has the right tools to describe the same. An ancient Man who had only seen stones throughout his whole life and nothing else, is more likeable to explain everything by using the concept of the stones as a base for his own interpretation and explanation. A legend created by any human being is absolutely connected to the Psychological Aspect of the same human being and no one else, legend are born of interpretations. Since that ancient man was already surrounded by stones and is the only thing he knows so far, he will use the concept of stones to describe, explain or interpret anything he hears, listened, saw, experienced or dreamed. No one can explain something unknown from a concept he can not understand or does not know. We usually explain unknown phenomena based on what we already know and understand. With this experiment it is also discovered how people with psychological issues usually alter the perception of a real phenomena, but the existence of the same phenomena is not in jeopardy. The psychological aspect of the earthling human is different with regard to its knowledge, education, geographical position and epoch. This theory is to demonstrate that every legend that exist are not based on lies but on distorted truths across the millenniums. Due to The Psychological Aspect of Earthling humans, these tend to exaggerate stories, phenomena and events, but the core of the narrative is absolute true, sin what really happened? is an investigation book about the secret history or the hidden history of the humanity, although the book develops topics related to philosophy, quantum physics and spirituality, the central topic of the book is the question "what really happened?"
